Oh Gawd!

Another day has been set upon me and I honestly don't know if I'm ready for it. Stuck at home with a bunch of bodies that I normally spend a third of the day with and now suffer a full 24 hours.

Don't get me wrong, it's no one's fault. The outside world right now has become toxic and it is to our advantage just to stay put with the ones we know best. Ride out the storm we are told. Soon with Hope, a cure will come and we will once again enjoy the fruits of our past.

Well, the past is the past. Maybe it's time to enjoy some new fruits and celebrate when the shackles of covid have been broken and we can start anew.

Wow, that was some cup of coffee!

When it tastes that good it's hard not to pause, slow down, and reflect on those things around me. Now I feel I should be happy that the ones around me are safe and healthy and will remain so if they follow the guidelines set out for them.

A good, better day is the one I produce so I should make another cup of that morning brew and tackle the day head on.

Every day I draw a solid breath is a day to celebrate.
